SOME RECENT JUDGMENTS OF THE SUPREME COURT OF INDIA

REHABILITATING VICTIM IS AS IMPORTANT AS PUNISHING THE ACCUSED

In the judgement given in Manohar Singh Versus State Of Rajasthan and Ors (in Criminal Appeal NO. 99 OF 2015) on January 16, 2015, the Hon’ble Supreme Court of India, inter alia, held and observed as follows:

Rehabilitating victim is as important as punishing the accused.

While punishment to the accused is one aspect, determination of just compensation to the victim is the other.

Just compensation to the victim has to be fixed having regard to the medical and other expenses, pain and suffering, loss of earning and other relevant factors. At times, evidence is not available in this regard. Some guess work in such a situation is inevitable.

Compensation is payable under Section 357 and 357-A. While under section 357, financial capacity of the accused has to be kept in mind, Section 357-A under which compensation comes out of State funds, has to be invoked to make up the requirement of just compensation.

AT THE STAGE OF COGNIZANCE COURT TO CONSIDER JUDICIOUSLY THE MATERIAL ON WHICH ACCUSED IS PROPOSED TO BE PROSECUTED

In the judgement given in Sunil Bharti Mittal versus Central Bureau of Investigation (Criminal Appeal No. 34 of 2015) on January 09, 2015, the Hon’ble Supreme Court of India, inter alia, held and observed as follows:

Even when a person is not named in the charge sheet as an accused person, the trial court has adequate powers to summon such a non-named person as well, if the trial court finds that the charge sheet and the documents/material placed along with the charge-sheet disclose sufficient prima facie material to proceed against such a person as well.

On a complaint or on a police report, the Magistrate is bound to consider the question as to whether the same discloses commission of an offence and is required to form such an opinion in this respect. When he does so and decides to issue process, he shall be said to have taken cognizance.

At the stage of taking cognizance, the only consideration before the Court remains to consider judiciously whether the material on which the prosecution proposes to prosecute the accused brings out a prima facie case or not.

If the person or group of persons who control the affairs of the company commit an offence with a criminal intent, their criminality can be imputed to the company as well as they are “alter ego” of the company.

When the company is the offender, vicarious liability of the directors cannot be imputed automatically, in the absence of any statutory provision to this effect.
